

How to buy roses for industrial microwave equipment(1)

All customers want to buy genuine good products, good equipment, how can buy roses microwave equipment? Is not difficult, as long as the intentions of inquiry and investigation tests, some manufacturers do not just listen to too much publicity, start-up companies say, "What the largest, there are hundreds of thousands of customers," just learn a little knowledge, to buy some components imitation assembly, and called "the most advanced technology," some customers after the purchase of equipment to know the truth, some customers are never come to understand that all of microwave equipment and technology are the same, once the problem is negated, so really good microwave equipment suffered injustice, microwave technology application and promotion are also severely affected.

Based on our communication with customers over the years found that with some simple methods and at the time of signing the contract to ensure rigor to minimize mistakes when buying equipment, not only depends on the technical parameters, technical parameters only represent the basic configuration of the device, the device can not represent the essence and authenticity can, before you buy must test site visits to ensure the correctness of the investment.

First, how to choose the microwave equipment

There are many types of microwave equipment, different types of equipment have their own characteristics, features and articles to be for you to deal with the variety and requirements (process) to determine the type of equipment items. Generally best to bring your items are tested should achieve the following objectives:

1, Quality

Quality is the enterprise, the quality must be the first consideration when purchasing equipment to determine the drying and sterilization quality, appearance quality, taste quality, whether your request. Such as the need to detect dry extract active ingredients and moisture content of dried drug.